Emergency Preparedness for Health Care Executives (EPHE) Workshop

THE NEED

During a disaster, health care executives are called upon to work with other local leaders, representing a myriad of government emergency response and support organizations. They must assume a leadership role, make tough decisions, handle media relations, act as a prime motivator and keep all involved parties informed. Emergency Preparedness for Health Care Executives (EPHE) is an instructor-led workshop that explores these roles and their impact through both presentations and an interactive case study.

TARGET AUDIENCE

- ▼ Advanced-level
- ▼ Recommended for health care executives

MODALITY

- ▼ Instructor-led

EPHE TOPICS INCLUDE:

- ▼ Describe executive roles during a disaster
- ▼ Explain the importance of performing hazard vulnerability and risk assessments and business impact analysis
- ▼ Define the key elements of effective situational awareness crisis communications
- ▼ Review with hospital leadership the variety of organizations that establish regulations, statutes or compliance for emergency preparedness and business continuity
- ▼ Demonstrate the importance of staying current on standards and regulations
- ▼ Explore planning, preparedness and recovery issues
- ▼ Explore real-world applications through participant-to-participant interactions
